Your Hospital Team

For a successful implementation of AIM Maternal Safety Bundles your hospital will need to form a multi-disciplinary Maternal Health & Safety Improvement Team.

The team should include:

Key Contact Person: A staff member charged to liaise with DSHS. DSHS recommends selecting a nurse who manages labor and delivery.

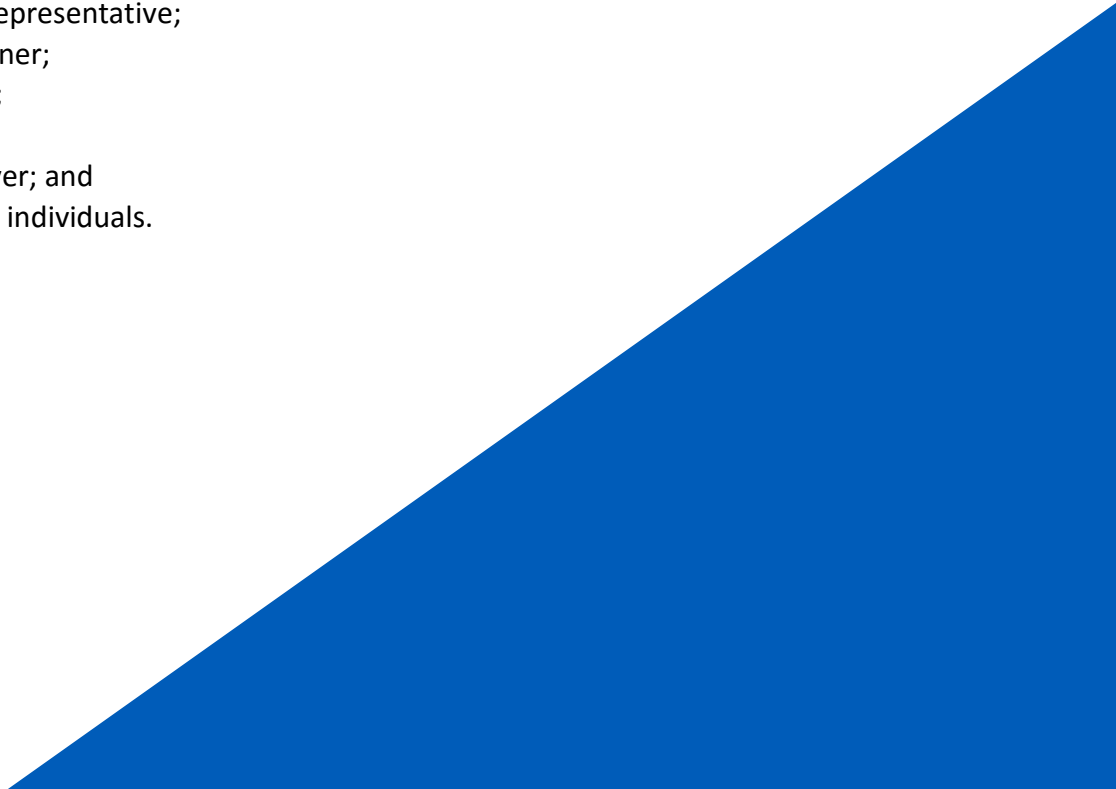

Technical Leader: A staff member who knows the subject of Obstetric Hemorrhage intimately and understands the processes of care. This person is responsible for the scheduling of activities and data collection. DSHS recommends selecting a nurse manager or staff nurse leader.

Clinical Leader: A physician who believes in this effort and will support the required change in process. Someone with authority to test processes, implement change and troubleshoot issues. This leader understands the clinical implications of proposed changes across the organization.

Day-to-Day Leadership: A staff member responsible for driving improvement every day. This leader manages and assures changes are being made and data is collected. DSHS recommends selecting the OB Nursing Leader.

Project Sponsor: An executive authority who can coordinate with senior management and across the organization. The sponsor links the project to hospital goals and resources. This leader also supports and encourages the hospital team and is responsible for the sustainability of the team's effective changes. They are not involved in day-to-day operations.

DSHS recommends that hospitals also work to include on your Quality Improvement Team a(n):

- anesthesia provider;
 - blood bank leader;
 - simulation leader;
 - patient/family representative;
 - community partner;
 - IT/EMR support;
 - OR leader;
 - frontline caregiver; and
 - other influential individuals.
